About the University

USAO is one of the most unique and progressive universities in the nation. It is Oklahoma’s only public liberal arts college.

As a liberal arts institution, we believe it is important that students always have before them the simultaneous experience of specialized and general learning. We believe it is important that they be challenged to relate their academic concentration to the broader realm of knowledge and that they continually be encouraged to develop meaningful and useful associations between diverse bodies of information.

This is the meaning of interdisciplinary education, and it is what truly distinguishes the learning experience at USAO. Many of the classes are taught by faculty teams, where two, three and sometimes four instructors plan the course and teach it together.

For example, American Civilization may be taught by a historian, philosopher and artist. World Thought and Culture could include a philosopher, sociologist and a literature professor. Math in the Modern World might involve a mathematician, computer scientist and musician.

Instructors interact in dealing with complex topics, all bringing his or her particular academic concentration into a conversation of perspectives.

This form of education is not easy. We intend that the rigors students face in interdisciplinary learning will result in significant personal growth and development. Difficulty is a necessary prerequisite of growth and development. Challenge is what interdisciplinary education is all about. It is what USAO is all about.

USAO has one of the best-prepared faculties in the state to offer and help conquer this challenge. Now, almost 90 percent of professors have earned the highest degree available in their field.

In 2011, USAO joined the prestigious list of “National Liberal Arts Colleges” in the U.S. News and World Report’s annual ranking — the only institution in Oklahoma, public or private, to be included on this select, national list. The same list includes Trinity, Amherst, Swarthmore and hundreds of other respected, private liberal arts colleges.

USAO also received an ‘A’ grade from the American Council of Trustees and Alumni (ACTA) for the strength of its IDS curriculum, making it one of only 22 universities nationwide to earn this near perfect score.

No institution in Oklahoma has higher admission standards. This is only one of the ways this institution is being transformed by its 10-year Mission Enhancement Plan.

In addition to the unique curriculum, USAO is a National Historic District and is the only college or university in Oklahoma to be on the National Register of Historic Places. It was given this status because of its history and the preservation of numerous original buildings on campus.

Originally founded as Oklahoma College for Women in 1908, the school was the first college created by Oklahoma’s first Legislature. Additionally, it was one of only seven colleges nationwide developed with the mission of catering to women.

Along with a rich history, USAO has the oldest original mission of any state college of university. Its original motto states:

Not for livelihood but for life.
We take great pride in the accomplishments of our students outside the classroom. And athletics is a prime example.

In 2012, three Drover teams made appearances in NAIA National Championship tournaments as men’s soccer, men’s basketball and baseball all represented our fine institution on a national stage. These are just three recent examples of the school’s achievements.

Throughout its rich 40 years of Drover athletics, the university boasts 45 All-Americans, 63 national scholar-athletes and 228 All-Conference athletes and coaches.

I know you take pride in the accomplishments of your Drover teams – setting records, graduating excellent student athletes and helping create a vibrant campus culture.

USAO, though, competes aggressively on a national level with the finest schools, public and private, and we’ve racked up several other “titles” that should add to your pride as a Drover:

- USAO ranks No. 4 in America among peer colleges for “promoting upward social mobility,” according to Washington Monthly. Its “upward social mobility” measure is based upon USAO’s ratio of graduation rate of Pell Grant recipients to net price.
- USAO is the only institution in Oklahoma – public or private – to be ranked on the exclusive “National Liberal Arts Colleges” list in U.S. News’ America’s Best Colleges Guide.
- The American Council of Trustees and Alumni (ACTA) includes USAO in a group of only 21 colleges and universities nationwide accorded with the highest accolade for the best quality and content of its core academic curriculum.
- Kiplinger magazine lists USAO on its exclusive national role of the 100 “Best Values in Public Colleges” in America.

Thank you to all our students, alumni, faculty, staff and friends who continue to work to better the university every day. We wouldn’t be where we are today without you!

Best of luck to the Drovers this season! Keep driving to be the best – and so will we!

President John Feaver
The University of Science and Arts of Oklahoma was well into its history before introducing its first sports teams in 1973 — teams that became known as the Drovers and the Droverettes, named after the rich heritage of cattle driving in the Chickasha area. Today, both teams are referred to as the Drovers.

The athletic programs began when the school was still named Oklahoma College of Liberal Arts. It started with baseball games, golf and tennis matches scheduled in the spring of 1973. The Drovers’ most prominent sport — basketball — began in the fall of 1973.

During that first year of basketball, the Drovers borrowed uniforms from Oral Roberts University in blue, gold and white. In the school’s second season, the OCLA Drovers became the USAO Drovers, and new uniforms in our trademark green and gold colors were acquired.

The first Drover basketball games were set against Bethany Nazarene College on Nov. 17, 1973. Two days later, on Nov. 19, then-Chickasha Mayor Samuel E. Evans declared “Drovers Day” as the university celebrated its first home game in Myers Fieldhouse, which is owned by Chickasha Public Schools. In 1981, the Drovers broke ground on the USAO Fieldhouse, which gave the teams a place to practice and play in their own backyard. Phase I of the building was completed during the 1981-82 season. Three more phases added dressing rooms, training areas and a swimming pool.

Long-time head basketball coach and now athletic director Brisco McPherson played for the first Drover basketball team and has been connected with the school ever since.

In 1984, basketball star Gordon Musgrove earned the university’s first All-American honor. A few seasons later, in 1988, Herb Blunt became USAO’s first All-America First Team recipient and earned Player of the Year honors in the Sooner Athletic Conference and NAIA’s District 9.

In 2002, the men’s basketball team went on to claim the Drovers first NAIA National Championship, beating out conference-rival Oklahoma Baptist 96-79.

After a 17-year hiatus, baseball was reborn in 1994, when the USAO Board of Regents voted to expand USAO’s athletics programs to include baseball, softball and cross country. Long-time Drover supporter and USAO administrator Bill Smith donated his personal baseball memorabilia to auction off for funds to help re-establish the Drover baseball and softball programs. In 1995, he became the namesake of the Drovers’ ballpark.

Both baseball and softball programs have served the university well, with baseball earning the Red River Conference North Division Championship in 1999 and softball claiming the Sooner Athletic Conference Championship in 2004. The softball program earned three straight NAIA National Tournament appearances in the mid-2000s while the baseball program represented the university at the NAIA National Tournament in 2013.

USAO proudly supported a tennis teams for years. In 1999, the women’s tennis team became the first in school history to win a regional championship. That year, both the men’s and women’s teams qualified for the NAIA National Tournament.

While the golf team served the college sporadically for many seasons, it along with tennis, was discontinued in lean years.

In 1998, the Drovers began the men’s and women’s soccer programs under Coach Jimmy Hampton. The Drover men have claimed numerous Sooner Athletic Conference championships and have been to the NAIA National Tournament five times. In 2010 and 2011, the Drover men made it all the way to the quarterfinals of the tournament, making history for the young program.

In 2011, the Drover women’s soccer team competed in their first NAIA National Tournament and won the Sooner Athletic Conference Tournament title for the first time in the program’s history.

Beginning in fall of 2012, the Drovers brought back cross country, which served the university a few seasons in the mid-1990s.

USAO began play as part of a five-school group that started the Sooner Athletic Conference. USAO dropped out of the SAC in 1994 for brief stints in the Oklahoma Intercollegiate and Red River Athletic conferences, but was granted re-admission in the SAC for the 2000-01 season. It is one of only two original members currently in the conference.

The Drovers have a rich history of winning and producing quality student-athletes. The university boasts 45 All-Americans, 63 NAIA Scholar-Athletes and 228 All-Conference coaches and athletes throughout its history.

Jimmy Hampton

Head Coach

In his decade and a half as the head coach of USAO men’s and women’s soccer teams, Jimmy Hampton has built the programs from the ground up and quickly turned them into powerful, nationally-competitive teams. He has led both teams to a combined 367-208-32 record.

Four of the last five years, Hampton was named Coach of the Year by the Sooner Athletic Conference and/or the National Soccer Coaches Association of America Southwest Region.

On the men’s soccer side, Hampton is the 18th winningest active coach in the NAIA with 210 wins to his credit going into the 2014 season.

In 2013, for the fifth year in a row, the Drover men received a bid to the coveted NAIA Men’s Soccer National Championship tournament. They found their way to the NAIA Quarterfinals two of those years and in 2012, the men even hosted the tournament’s opening round.

Making history for the women’s soccer program, USAO won the Sooner Athletic Conference Tournament and played in the opening round of the NAIA National Tournament in 2011.

In addition to talented players on the field, Hampton continues to recruit players who excel off the field as well. In 2010, the Drover women were given the NSCAA Team Academic Award for stellar scholastics. Hampton has had 37 players named Daktronics-NAIA Scholar-Athletes.

Hampton doubles as the director of coaching for the Oklahoma Football Club, the biggest club in the state. There, he’s coached three national runner up teams and grabbed 22 state club titles. Hampton also led his Women’s Premier Soccer League team to the Big Sky Conference Championship title three of the four years and was named Coach of the Year in 2010. He took his players to the final four in the summer of 2012. In 2013 and 2014, Hampton coached the Oklahoma City Football Club, a PDL league that debuted in the state that year.

Before becoming USAO’s coach, Hampton spent eight seasons building championship-caliber teams at Chickasha High School. In that time, the Fightin’ Chicks collected five state championships, and Hampton won nearly 90 percent of his games in his years at CHS. He ranks as one of the all-time winningest soccer coaches in Oklahoma prep history.

He is one of the few soccer coaches in the Southwest to obtain a national “A” coaching license from the United States Soccer Federation.

As a player, Hampton was successful at nearly every level. As an all-state selection at Tulsa Union High School, Hampton played two seasons at the NCAA Division I Western Illinois University and two at Northeastern State University, where he was named team captain and earned all-conference honors as a senior. Hampton also played professionally for the Tulsa Roughnecks and the Oklahoma City Warriors.

Hampton and his wife, Kerri, have three children — Alexandria (23), Butch (17) and Dax (15).
Alexis Vizarelis has been with the Drovers program since it began in 1998, first as one of the school’s best goalkeepers and then as an assistant under Hampton.

While coaching at USAO, Vizarelis has helped develop players to become NAIA All-Americans and serves as recruiting coordinator and goalkeeper coach.

His goalkeeping ability and defensive philosophy are almost unprecedented. Hampton has said Vizarelis is one of the best goalkeepers he’s seen and someone who has made a difference coaching USAO goalies.

In 2013, Vizarelis joined an exclusive list of coaches to obtain a national “A” coaching license from the United States Soccer Federation.

As a player, Vizarelis is one of the most decorated goalkeepers in USAO’s history. At one time, he has held every school goalkeeping record. For his career (1998-01), Vizarelis notched 21 shutouts.

In February of 2007, Vizarelis was inducted into the USAO Athletic Hall of Fame.

Tony Orsi begins his eighth season as an assistant coach for the Drovers, taking over as lead assistant for the women’s program in the summer of 2012.

In addition to his role at USAO, he has been a coach with the Oklahoma Football Club since 2006. He coaches three teams, one of which won the 2012 President’s Cup State Championship and represented OFC in South Carolina for the President’s Cup Regionals.

Additionally, he is an assistant coach for the OFC Women’s Premier Soccer League, the highest women’s league in the country. Twice the team made it to the national final four tournament. They are three-time Big Sky Conference Champions.

In 2006, Orsi was the head soccer coach at Chickasha High School. He also coached three years at Deer Creek High School, where he led his team to the state semifinals twice. In 2009, he was named District Coach of the Year.

He earned a National “C” coaching license in 2006.

As a player, Orsi started four seasons for Southwestern Oklahoma State University as a defender. His senior season, he was named All-Conference for the Lone Star Conference and served as the team captain.

Hubbard is coaching his sixth season at USAO, joining the coaching staff in 2009 after four years as a player for the Drovers.

He became the head trainer for Edmond North High School in 2010. He helped lead the Lady Huskies to a threepeat State Championship appearance. Additionally, he is a coach at the Oklahoma Football Club.

He recently earned a National “B” coaching license.

As a player, Hubbard helped lead the Drovers to three SAC Tournament Championships.

For his career, he was responsible for 32 goals, which is sixth in USAO history in career goals. He recorded two hat tricks during his four years, which ties third place in USAO’s records.
Strong upperclassmen and talented newcomers could lead to a record-breaking year out of the Drover women’s soccer team as the 2014 campaign unfolds.

“This is the best talent we’ve had in the 16 years of the program,” Hampton said. “I want us to win a Sooner Athletic Conference title and to go to the national tournament to compete for a national championship.”

The 2014 team has nine upperclassmen and 14 returners who provide a backbone and leadership for the nine freshmen, many of whom are expected to start immediately.

The Drovers were picked to finish fifth out of 10 teams in the Sooner Athletic Conference Preseason Coaches Poll. Hampton said he thought fifth was a fair position based on last year’s performance.

In 2013, the Drovers won five of their last eight games and found their way into the postseason after struggling to get a rhythm early in the season. USAO finished the year with a 6-11 (5-5) record.

From the 2013 squad, USAO lost two players who saw significant time on the field and the team’s back up goalkeeper, but the Drovers’ big scorers — Jade Ovendale and Linda Addo — are back for their senior season.

Together Ovendale and Addo scored 29 of the team’s 38 goals for the season and were also the team’s biggest assisters on the year.

On the defensive end, USAO returns its starting goalkeeper, Addie Lee. After three years, Lee is second in school history in career shutouts with 13. Also, she is third in career goals against average (1.50) and wins (21).

Anchoring the back line for another year are juniors Ryah Vyse and Jentry Yates.

“Our returners are going to be huge for us,” Hampton said. “And they look good in preseason.”

Despite how good returners are, Hampton says no returner is safe in her starting position.

“I tell them to compete, compete to get the starting 11 kit,” Hampton said. “If you want to get a kit, you better be better than the new kids coming in.”

And the talent coming in is strong. Hampton said he is excited for the recruiting class, which he described as one of the best in the program’s history.

Three freshmen newcomers in particular that he pointed out as expected to start immediately are forward Jordan Cleveland, midfielder Lauren Parker and defender Kate Williams. All three are Oklahoma athletes who were named All-District in high school.

Hampton brought in nine freshmen and one junior. Additionally, junior Shay Nash, from Northern Oklahoma College, is expected on the field this year after a preseason injury in 2013.

“The women have done well, to be fair. They have bought into it,” Hampton said. “A lot of players have changed even from last year in their workout mentality.”

In 16 years coaching USAO, Hampton has led the women’s team to an overall record of 157-125-18. The program’s highlight was a 2011 SAC Championship and first national tournament appearance that same year.

Fans who can’t make it out to the Drovers home games this year can watch them live for free online on USAO’s sports website, usao.edu/sports.

CONTINUING A ‘TRADITION OF SUCCESS’

A winning tradition is set for the men's soccer team at the University of Science and Arts of Oklahoma, and the 2014 season brings high expectations and high stakes.

In the NAIA preseason poll, the Drovers were in the No. 17 spot, which is where they finished the 2013 campaign. It is the fifth year in a row USAO has appeared on the preseason Top 25 list.

Additionally, the Drovers were picked to take the Sooner Athletic Conference for the fifth year in a row.

“It creates a tradition of success and a highly competitive environment when you step onto the field as a USAO men's soccer player,” Head Soccer Coach Jimmy Hampton said.

In 2013, the Drovers won 11 of their last 12 games, stomping through the SAC regular season and tournament with just one conference loss. The Drovers finished the 2013 campaign with a 15-5 (9-1) record.

In 16 years coaching at USAO, Hampton has led the men’s team to an overall record of 210-83-14. The Drovers have been to the NAIA Men's Soccer National Championship tournament each of the last five years, and this year's goal, Hampton said, is to return and make a run for the title.

“Want to continue the route to the national championship; it is an expectation,” he said. “There’s probably a bit more pressure on the new kids coming in to live up to the previous successes.”

The 2014 team is composed of roughly half newcomers and half returning players. Key returners include NAIA All-American and SAC Player of the Year Liam Madden and the Drovers’ record-holding goalkeeper Bryan Byars.

Madden, a junior from Scotland, was tied for first on last year's team for total goals with 10 and led the squad in assists with nine. Byars holds nearly every goalkeeping record in school history and is already tearing into national records entering his senior year.

Also, three other Drovers who earned All-Conference honors last year will once again take the field for USAO — midfielders Kalokwera Okot and Niall Burley and forward Stephen Owusu.

Together, the three players were responsible for 12 goals and 10 assists in 2013.

Hampton said it is hard to tell so early on which newcomers could prove to be big contributors this year, although many are expected to see significant playing time early in the season.

The athletes began practice on Aug. 12, and Hampton said the Drovers focused on fitness and endurance to best prepare the team to turn around and play almost immediately.

Additional focus has been on tactical work and team building to help the players learn to work as a unit and to play for one another.

In their first preseason exhibition less than a week after the players checked in for the year, the Drovers topped Oklahoma Wesleyan, a team ranked fifth in the NAIA preseason poll, with a 3-1 final, and tied NCAA Division I Oral Roberts a few days later.

Fans who can’t make it out to the Drovers home games this year can watch them live for free online on USAO’s sports website, usao.edu/sports.
